

Institutional Investor Services

Institutional investors, particularly public pension funds, have specific needs and obligations.

Legislative and judicial developments over the last two decades have established that institutional funds, the major stakeholders in U.S. public companies, have an affirmative duty to recoup losses resulting from corporate misconduct and securities fraud. Institutional investors are expected to have procedures and policies in place to monitor securities class actions in which they have a financial interest and viable claims

Bernstein Litowitz Berger & Grossmann is widely recognized as one of the leading law firms representing institutional investors in corporate governance, shareholder rights and securities litigation matters. In order to help institutional funds properly track potential securities frauds and recoup losses, BLB&G employs a state-of-the-art proprietary portfolio monitoring and case evaluation system. Click here to learn more.

In addition, we publish a quarterly newsletter, The Advocate for Institutional Investors, and produce the "Webcast Series for Institutional Investors" - two educational offerings for the benefit of the institutional investor community. We also host numerous educational conferences on securities law and corporate governance issues for our clients and other institutional investors.